Small Moves, Big Impact

Bobbie Willis, Zoom

Everything in a classroom is more manageable and engaging when routines, community and student-leadership are strong. Building these up does not have to be "another thing," or a huge burden. Rather, small, consistent moves and routines over time will build up community and reveal student leaders in your midst; all of this can lead to a classroom of students who feel connected to each other, and this connectedness can relieve some of a teacher's overwhelm. This seminar is for both the new or new-ish educator looking to add to your repertoire, and for the returning educator with strategies and tips to share.

Improving Student Engagement with Productive Discourse Strategies in STEM Classes

Sarah Ruggiero and Virginia Seefeld, Zoom

In the spirit of Ambitious math and science teaching, we will explore ways to engage students in productive discourse, using strategies that build on their individual ideas, embrace rough-draft thinking and leverage collaborative reasoning. "A discussion-rich learning environment can provide students with agency over their own learning." (Cirillo)

Jan. 21st

Connect with the 4J School Board

4J School Board

Use this opportunity to touch base and engage in an authentic conversation about our concerns, questions, and celebrations. We will allow for our Board members present to introduce themselves and share their favorite 4j moment and their pressing focus for the year. Based on the size of our group, we will then split into smaller groups for greater interaction. Finally, we will rejoin as a whole group and share out a recap of our small groups and allow for the group to respond or add information as needed. Members from both 4j and Bethel are encouraged to attend.

AI in the Classroom: From Hesitation to Innovation

Jesse Merz, Zoom

Step into the future. In this bold, hands-on workshop, you'll break through the fear and hype surrounding AI. From ChatGPT to Claude, we'll strip AI down to its core, showing you raw, real-world applications that can transform your classroom. You'll try, test, and share. Walk away skeptical or excited, but never unaware. AI is here—are you ready to unlock its potential? (and AI wrote this - let's talk about this!)

Jan. 28th

Let's put the A in STEAM!

Maggie Cline and Tana Shepard, Kennedy Middle School

In this make and take session, we will create art that visually models weather (like rainfall, temperature, etc.) and climate pattern data points over time bringing them to life. This will be an in-person session held at Kennedy Middle School room A-1 in the west end of the building. You can come directly to the room without going through the office. See map

Jan. 30th Conscious Discipline: Creating a Brain Smart Classroom

Kerri Sage, Zoom

In this session we will look at ways to incorporate practices to create a classroom family where all students feel safe and connected. Elements of a brain smart start include an activity to unite, an activity to connect, an activity to disengage stress, and an activity to commit.

Feb. 4th Let's Volunteer At Food For Lane County

Dan Budd, Food For Lane County, 770 Bailey Hill Rd. Eugene, OR 97402

Last year we learned a lot about how we can connect our students and families to FFLC. Let's take this a step farther and share our time to benefit others. We will be meeting at their Bailey Hill location to help in the warehouse by sorting and packing goods for distribution. This opportunity is uniquely open for you to bring along family and friends that would like to join in the effort. All ages are welcome. (Participants are advised to wear closed-toe shoes)

Feb. 6th Connecting Your Curriculum To The Real World

Amanda Zacharek, Zoom

This session offers practical strategies to make learning meaningful and relevant for all K-12 students. Learn how to engage students through guest speakers, hands-on projects like cooking, everyday resources, and community-based field trips. Walk away with actionable ideas to connect classroom learning to real-world experiences that inspire and empower learners.

Feb. 11th Tribal History/Shared History

Nicole Butler, Zoom

Join this session to dig deeper into SB 13. You will learn about supports created for you to support this learning for your students and hear perspectives that will support your instruction. This session will support all grade levels.

Feb. 20th Ways to Support Children Impacted by Foster Care - Every Child Lane County

Linsey Bjorklund, Zoom

Learn how we can better support our students and families in the foster care system. Mission Statement: Every Child Lane County mobilizes our community to support kids and families impacted by foster care. ECLC actively recruits, equips, and supports resource (foster) parents; meets tangible needs of kids in crisis; and creates redemptive childhood memories. We believe everyone can do something to positively impact a child in foster care.

Feb. 25th A Focus on Diversity and Equity

Nicole Butler and Nick Cervantes, Zoom

As educators, let's focus our efforts on an authentic conversation on diversity and equity in our school communities. Please come prepared to listen, share, and learn.

Feb. 27th

Authenticity and Priority

Ruth Samartha, Zoom

Unlock your full potential as an educator by embracing your authentic self. Prioritize what truly matters to you to create a more enriching and effective learning environment. Join us as we explore strategies to align your teaching practices with your personal values and inspire genuine connections with your students.

Mar. 4th

The Evolution of Inclusion

Kara Whipple and Liz Johnson, Zoom

Join in on this opportunity to engage in supporting inclusion at all levels for all students. Walk away with new perspectives and strategies to engage learners.

Mar. 6th

Tips-N-Tricks

Elementary Team - Kathleen Brandt, Kathi Holvey, Rhian Arp, and Amy Petty, Zoom

Have you just wanted a moment to step into our colleague's classrooms and see the organizational strategies, classroom motivators, and all the tips and tricks that we do to enhance or simplify this overwhelming career? That's the idea around this seminar. Our elementary team is ready to share a few things from their own classroom and we'd ask you to come with one small idea of your own to also share adding to our collective experience and wealth of take-a-ways. While the team is elementary focused, many of the strategies will apply to any age classroom and all educators are welcome.

Mar. 11th

Supporting Students On The Autism Spectrum During Whole Class Instruction

Toby Rickard, Zoom

Participants will share strategies and explore scenarios, learn more about potential interventions and accommodations focusing on student-centered best practices and universal design for learning.

Mar. 13th
